

NEW-HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 11, 1858.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 10, 1858.

C. K. Coburn, County Superintendent of Bradford, then read a report on mathematical study. He dwelt at some length on the necessity of some knowledge of arithmetic, &c., for success in practical life, and on the scientific achievements of the calculus, and then proceeded to suggest methods of training classes in the elementary branches. A crowded audience was kept in earnest attention for over half an hour by these remarks, but they were of interest chiefly to practical teachers.

Correspondence of The N. Y. Tribune.
WATKINS, N. Y., Aug. 10, 1858.

diversified beauties. You then take a winding course along the southern bank, and, ascending a number of steep steps cut in a large solid rock, come to a flight of stairs about twenty feet high, which take you above on the opposite side of the glacier. Then following a narrow path for a short distance, you again cross the stream and reach another flight of steps, by which you ascend to a large dam. Here you have a fine view of the scenery around which you have passed. The grandeur and beauty here displayed, the play of the waters, the sweet warbling of the birds, and the cool atmosphere of this glacier, all combine to make it as pleasant a summer resort as can well be found.

AMERICAN WINE-GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

Cincinnati was really the headquarters for pure wine.

fruity flavor. The '51 sample was greatly admired for its fine, ethereal, Madeira taste; and the rich mellowness of the '48 wine was highly lauded, but presumed to be owing somewhat to its age. The sample of '5 was remarkable for its high Catawba flavor. Given this a few more years of age, and, in the opinion

M. WERK'S '51 WINE.
This was a superior wine; its praise, along with

The St. Paul Times publishes a letter from Orinoo which states that every miner there can make a fortune—a good hand being able to gather from $30 to $35 per day. The principal difficulty is in the extraneousness of the metal, which is like bran, and difficult to wash out of the black sand which the yellow particles checker.

BORDER WARFARE ON THE OHIO.—A year ago, an old man named Bell, and his son, living in this State opposite Brandenburg, were suspected by the citizens of Meade County, Ky., of being privy to or abettors

In relation to an article from The Buffalo Commercial Advertiser lately published in THE TRIBUNE and many other papers, The Albany Country Gentleman says, upon the authority of Dr. Asa Fitch, a learned entomologist:

"The cause of the rot is supposed to be an insect, and numerous experiments are given to confirm this view; the insect itself is described at length. Its name, with the spelling corrected, is the Pythium (Phytophthora) of Koeberlin."

ample room for two, a matrimonial alliance which would add to her own income a moderate amount toward the support of the household, would be proper and desirable. Accordingly she became the wife of a gentleman of standing and some reputed wealth, residing in Detroit. During the great financial crisis of last Fall, however, his wealth vanished into thin air, and this or some other cause produced discord. To make a lengthy story short, the lady proposed to endow her unreciprocal lord with half her fortune if he would but take himself off. The offer was promptly accepted.

TERRIBLE DEATH OF A LADY IN DANE COUNTY
Wis.—The Madison Argus contains the following particulars of the terrible death of Mrs. Miller, wife of the Postmaster at Sweet Home, in Dane County:
“We regret to learn of the fearful death of Mr. Miller, wife of Mr. Miller, Postmaster at Sweet Home in this county. Last Sunday she started on her back, either to church or a neighborhood visit.